

Immigration Lawyers in Moose Jaw Saskatchewan

Immigration Lawyers in Moose Jaw Saskatchewan - Our company is somewhat experienced at some of the aspects of employment law comprising the drafting of independent contractor and employment agreements, providing suggestion about human rights and legislative requirements, and educating both employers and employees concerning the subject of wrongful dismissal.

Should employment law be disregarded, it could have devastating effects on the workplace. Creating undesirable working environment, loss of values employees and lost revenues are some of the potential damages which might occur. Whatever of these problems could start to tarnish a businesses status. At our company, we strongly encourage our clients to make employment and independent contractor agreements, and workplace training, to try and minimize future concerns.

Our teams of lawyers are full capable of representing our clients in all levels of court in Saskatchewan. We also are extremely trained at mediations and arbitrations.

Amongst the aspects of employment-related claims that our firm has knowledge in are drawing up employment and contractor agreements, advising concerning human rights, workers' compensations, employment standards, and occupational health and safety issues, helping prepare workplace manuals, and participating in arbitration and mediation.