

Family Lawyer in Moose Jaw Saskatchewan

Family Lawyer in Moose Jaw Saskatchewan - Adoption legislation differs from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. Whether you are considering a domestic or international adoption, you should talk to a knowledgeable family law lawyer to ensure a smooth process and successful outcome. Our company gives the skilled, aggressive and fearless legal representation required to be able to assist you attain your goal. We welcome complicated cases and will work hard to ensure the best outcome possible.

Adoption is a multi-step process governed by law, which allows adoptions to go through a children's aid society, the court or a private agency.

Private Adoption

A private adoption can be managed by any agency which is licensed to provide private adoption services. The birth parents can select the adoptive parents in private adoptions. If you know of a child available for adoption, you can contact a private adoption licensee. Private adoptions can be emotionally stressful and due to the paperwork requirements involved. It is suggested that you acquire legal counsel for help.

Public Adoption

A public adoption refers to adopting a child via a children's aid society in instances in which the birth parents like a different family to adopt their child or the Court has determined that the parents cannot handle the task of taking care of a child. Public adoptions are complex and require the assistance of an experienced lawyer. We know the nuances of the public adoption system. Our firm would provide you with skilled representation.

International Adoption

For an international adoption, skilled legal representation is rather critical, because this adoption method is the most complex. It is essential that you know the international law difficulties, and that you stay within the adoption laws, immigration laws, and the laws of the home country of the child, that gives final adoption consent. International adoption agencies are permitted to handle these cases. The procedure will involve a home study and letter of approval from Children and Youth Services.